U. S. Government Ready to Listen to any New Disarmament Proposals Protecting America

ANGLO FRENCH NAVAL PACT IS OPPOSED

OBVIOUSLY TENDS TO LIMIT AMERICAN SEA STRENGTH AND INCREASE OWN

MATERIALLY ENHANCES FRANCO-BRITISH OFFENSIVE POWER

By MAURITZ A. HALLGREN (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 29.—The United States government stood ready today to listen to any new disarmament proposal, fully protecting American naval interests and national needs. But it opposes the Anglo-French naval pact because that obviously is intended to limit American sea strength while materially enhancing Franco-British offensive power.

That was revealed clearly today as America's position on the Anglo-French naval plan, following publication of identical notes Secretary of State Kellogg sent France and Britain. These notes said:

"No program that might place this country at a disadvantage on the seas need be submitted. The Anglo-French arrangement would not only have had this result, but would also have led 'to a recrudescence of naval competition.'"

This firm stand on the naval question is expected to have serious reverberations in Europe, according to well-informed opinion here.

It is anticipated the European press will charge the United States with being just as stubborn in supporting its naval arms thesis as England and France have been in holding to their programs.

Summarized, the identical notes, replying to requests for America's opinion of the Anglo-French plan, set forth the following reasons for disapproving that plan:

1. It provides for the limitation of cruisers carrying eight-inch guns, which are "peculiarly suited to the needs of the United States," while leaving unlimited light cruisers carrying guns of six-inch or smaller caliber, which England requires.

2. It provides no limitation on submarines under 600 tons, which France says she needs. In American opinion, such ships are formidable combatant vessels.

3. It conflicts with the American theory "that any limitation of naval armaments to be effective should apply to all classes of combatant vessels."

4. It "leaves unlimited a very large class of effective fighting ships and this very fact would inevitably lead to a recrudescence of naval competition disastrous to national economy."

The statement by Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, that the American reply would not necessarily mean the end of the Anglo-French agreement was considered as reflecting only a forlorn hope. Authorities doubted that any number of other sea powers would agree to limit certain classes of naval vessels while the United States remained unrestricted.

Sir John Studd is Lord Mayor of London

London, Sept. 29.—(UP)—Sir John Edward Kynaston Studd was elected lord mayor of London today.

New York citizens will get an extra hour of sleep. Railroads will issue new folders for commutation and other trains influenced by the time shift.

Many cities of New York state, all of Massachusetts and Rhode Island and parts of Pennsylvania and New Jersey have been on daylight saving time for the summer months.

BELIEVE THEY HAVE FOUND THE "KIDNAP FARM"

WHERE LITTLE BILLY RANIERI OF CHICAGO WAS HELD CAPTIVE 13 DAYS

LOCATED AT BOURBONNAIS, ILL., 50 MILES SOUTH OF CHICAGO

Chicago, Sept. 29.—(UP)—The "kidnap farm" where little Billy Ranieri was held captive for 13 days was believed found today.

Deserted, the house, a two-story frame structure answering descriptions given by the boy, was found at Bourbonnais, Ill., 50 miles south of Chicago.

The occupants, thought to be an Italian, Andrew Cappellano, his wife and their ten children, fled Thursday, it was said. They were believed to have headed toward Canada in an automobile.

GOV. AL SMITH TO CLOSE WESTERN TOUR TONIGHT

TO OPEN UP ISSUE WHICH IS FOREMOST IN STATE OF WISCONSIN

MODIFICATION OF VOLSTEAD ACT AND EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT

By THOMAS L. STOKES (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 29.—Governor Alfred E. Smith will close his western tour here tonight by opening up the issue which is foremost in this state and which many voters are making the outstanding one over all the country—modification of the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment.

From all indications, the democratic candidate will end his first campaign trip here with a veritable "bang." Milwaukee citizens received him last night by turning out almost bodily. People here said it was the greatest gathering in the history of the city.

The size and enthusiasm of the meeting tonight, democratic leaders here promised, will be in proportion to the welcoming reception. Some of them saw the hilarious gathering in St. Paul which Smith himself said was the largest political meeting he ever addressed.

He will receive a cordial hearing tonight. Many persons here told members of the Smith entourage when it arrived that Milwaukee wants its beer. That is the big issue in this former brewing center.

It will represent the first formal and detailed discussion of his modification program since Smith accepted the nomination. He touched on the issue, sketchily at Omaha. Tonight, he will treat it in detail.

Smith comes here on an important mission, and to this he will turn his attention during a series of conferences with state political leaders today—winning of the large vote that has endorsed the policies of the La Follettes—father and son, for many years.

The elder LaFollette, who carried only this, his own state, as an independent candidate for the presidency in 1924, but ran ahead of the democratic candidate, John W. Davis, in nearly all the western states Smith visited, was an anti-prohibitionist. So is his son, "Young Bob" who fell heir to his father's political machine when the senator died.

Smith will make his "wet" appeal tonight. But he comes here with a program, of which the wet issue is only one phase, designed to win the LaFollette support.

His program already outlined in his western speeches, is similar in many respects to that of the LaFollettes. It embodies water power, farm relief, inland waterway development.

He is expected to review his stand on these issues tonight before turning his attention to his major topic here.

Shortly after he entered this state, the New York governor carried his waterpower stand a step further in a newspaper conference, a step which brings him nearer to the stand of Senator George Norris of Nebraska, leader of the fight in congress for government operation of Muscle Shoals. Norris, who has a large following in Wisconsin, recently commended Smith for his waterpower stand.

"I believe," the democratic candidate said, "that the government ought to keep the control of the plant and operate it where it is feasible to do it and deliver the energy to the company under a contract that gives the government something to say about the rates."

In connection with his statement upon what he considered the duties of a president in his St. Paul speech,

HERBERT HOOVER IS TO SPEAK ON PARTY PATRIOTISM

SUBJECT TO BE TEXT OF SPEECH AT MADISON SQUARE GARDEN OCT. 13

WILL TAKE UP IMPORTANT TASK OF DEVELOPING PARTY DEVOTION

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 29.—(UP)—The bolting of old line party leaders in both political camps has become so pronounced in the presidential campaign that Herbert Hoover intends to devote a liberal portion of his future speeches to party patriotism.

The subject will be the text of the speech the republican nominee is to deliver in Madison Square Garden, New York, the night of October 13.

Importance of the bolters' activities has been called to Hoover's attention previously by his managers and advisers. Every speech he has made thus far in the campaign has mentioned the record of the republican party and the necessity of continuing that record as a party principle. But his advisers do not believe he has gone far enough.

So in his New York speech under the auspices of the various men and women's republican state organizations and the Union League club he will devote himself more particularly to the task of developing party devotion.

The last draft of Hoover's Elizabethan, Tennessee speech is expected to be sent to the printers before night, thus clearing his desk of pending matters.

His engagement list today included Shingoré, Takahashi, editor of the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokio Nichi Nichi; Senator Vandenberg, (republican), county chairmen of the republican service league of New Jersey headed by Frank D'Olier and a delegation from the national convention of the Knights of the Round Table.

Washington, Sept. 29.—(UP)—Herbert Hoover will make his Massachusetts speech Oct. 25 at a place yet to be designated, the Republican National committee announced today. Simultaneously it was announced he will make a final radio campaign speech from Palo Alto, Cal., his home, Nov. 5, the night before election.

Hoover has indicated his Massachusetts speech will be delivered at Boston, although no definite hall has yet been selected. The Massachusetts and Palo Alto speeches will be broadcast over a nation-wide radio hookup. Enroute to his California home to cast his vote, Hoover will stop off at a city not yet selected and make a speech. This too will be broadcast over a nation-wide hookup, it was announced today.

LADY ASTOR WOULD LIKE TO CAMPAIGN IN UNITED STATES

New York, Sept. 29.—(UP)—Lady Astor would like to get into the American presidential campaign, but her position as a member of the British Parliament prevents her, she said today. She declined to express a preference between candidates.

Lady Astor, formerly Nancy Langhorne of Virginia, arrived yesterday on the Aquitania for a two-weeks stay in this country. She leaves Sunday for Virginia.

Smith was asked by newspapermen what he thought of a president taking part in a political campaign, as President Coolidge is planning to do for Herbert Hoover.

"Well, that is politics as against governmental business," he replied. "That would be for his own conscience. But I think on governmental business he should talk to the people."

"Would you welcome an address by the president defending his administration so that you could have somebody to debate with," he was asked.

"Well, I do not think that is for me to say," he answered. "I am not concerned about that. I am talking about what I believe the duty of a president to be, and I claim I am right."

SURVIVAL OF FITTEST POLICE IN PHILADELPHIA

TRUE AND COMPLETE REPORTS ON VICE CONDITIONS ASKED FOR

IF NOT HANDED IN, THERE WILL BE DEMOTION OR FIRING

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—(U.P.)—Mayor Harry A. Mackey has placed the Philadelphia police force on a basis of the survival of the fittest—and the most honest.

The police, many of whom are charged with accepting bribes from bootleggers and proprietors of disorderly houses, are going to have to work against each other. Any captain who doesn't bring in a true and complete report of vice conditions in his district will be reduced to patrolman or fired.

Goaded by the failure of his policemen to clean up the city after six weeks of investigation of a $10,000,000 bootleg ring by a grand jury, Mackey has decided to resort to the most drastic police shake-up ever ordered in a large American city.

Today every police captain in the city will receive orders to file a report Monday on conditions in his district. Then every policeman in the city will be moved to a new district, with none knowing his destination until he gets his orders.

Again the captains will be required to file reports—this time on conditions in their new districts. Mackey will take the reports and check them against one another.

Shortly after he entered this state, the New York governor carried his waterpower stand a step further in a newspaper conference, a step which brings him nearer to the stand of Senator George Norris of Nebraska, leader of the fight in congress for government operation of Muscle Shoals. Norris, who has a large following in Wisconsin, recently commended Smith for his waterpower stand.

"I believe," the democratic candidate said, "that the government ought to keep the control of the plant and operate it where it is feasible to do it and deliver the energy to the company under a contract that gives the government something to say about the rates."

In connection with his statement upon what he considered the duties of a president in his St. Paul speech,

HERBERT HOOVER IS TO SPEAK ON PARTY PATRIOTISM

SUBJECT TO BE TEXT OF SPEECH AT MADISON SQUARE GARDEN OCT. 13

WILL TAKE UP IMPORTANT TASK OF DEVELOPING PARTY DEVOTION

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 29.—(U.P.)—The bolting of old line party leaders in both political camps has become so pronounced in the presidential campaign that Herbert Hoover intends to devote a liberal portion of his future speeches to party patriotism.

The subject will be the text of the speech the republican nominee is to deliver in Madison Square Garden, New York, the night of October 13.

Importance of the bolters' activities has been called to Hoover's attention previously by his managers and advisers. Every speech he has made thus far in the campaign has mentioned the record of the republican party and the necessity of continuing that record as a party principle. But his advisers do not believe he has gone far enough.

So in his New York speech under the auspices of the various men and women's republican state organizations and the Union League club he will devote himself more particularly to the task of developing party devotion.

The last draft of Hoover's Elizabethan, Tennessee speech is expected to be sent to the printers before night, thus clearing his desk of pending matters.

His engagement list today included Shingor, Takashi, editor of the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokio Nichi Nichi; Senator Vandenberg, (repp., Mich.), county chairman of the republican service league of New Jersey headed by Frank D'Olier and a delegation from the national convention of the Knights of the Round Table.

Washington, Sept. 29.—(U.P.)—Herbert Hoover will make his Massachusetts speech Oct. 25 at a place yet to be designated, the Republican National committee announced today. Simultaneously it was announced he will make a final radio campaign speech from Palo Alto, Cal., his home, Nov. 5, the night before election.

Hoover has indicated his Massachusetts speech will be delivered at Boston, although no definite hall has yet been selected. The Massachusetts and Palo Alto speeches will be broadcast over a nation-wide radio hookup. Enroute to his California home to cast his vote, Hoover will stop off at a city not yet selected and make a speech. This too will be broadcast over a nation-wide hookup, it was announced today.

LADY ASTOR WOULD LIKE TO CAMPAIGN IN UNITED STATES

New York, Sept. 29.—(U.P.)—Lady Astor would like to get into the American presidential campaign, but her position as a member of the British Parliament prevents her, she said today. She declined to express a preference between candidates.

Lady Astor, formerly Nancy Langhorne of Virginia, arrived yesterday on the Aquitania for a two-weeks stay in this country. She leaves Sunday for Virginia.

Smith was asked by newspapermen what he thought of a president taking part in a political campaign, as President Coolidge is planning to do for Herbert Hoover.

"Well, that is politics as against governmental business," he replied. "That would be for his own conscience. But I think on governmental business he should talk to the people."

"Would you welcome an address by the president defending his administration so that you could have somebody to debate with," he was asked.

"Well, I do not think that is for me to say," he answered. "I am not concerned about that. I am talking about what I believe the duty of a president to be, and I claim I am right."

MRS. E. P. SLIPP ENTERTAINS

Honor Guest Was Her Sister, Mrs. C. H. Long, of Chicago

One of Wednesday's hostesses was Mrs. E. P. Slipp who entertained at her home, 302 Juniper street, in honor of her sister, Mrs. C. H. Long. The chief feature of the afternoon's enjoyment was a reading, "Sally Ann's Experience," given by Mrs. Louis Knudson in a very graphic manner as she pictured the different phases of the financial relations between husband and wife.

Eliza Calvert Hall states, "In writing Sally Ann's experience my purpose was to show the iniquity of the old common law of England in regard to the property rights of married women," while the Cosmopolitan magazine, July 1908, says, "The great popularity of Sally Ann's Experience is undoubtedly due to the fact that its theme is a matter that has touched directly or indirectly the life of nearly every woman."

Mrs. R. J. Hartley assisted the hostess in receiving and Mrs. Maria Slipp assisted in serving while the Misses Maybelle Grewcox, Corna Stickney, Kathryn Albright and Bernice Whiteley catered to the guests.

Outside guests were: Mrs. Long, Chicago, Mrs. Yancey Bartholow, Dallas, Texas, Mrs. Eckhart, Northwood, Iowa and Mrs. M. DeChon, Miami, Florida.

MRS. E. P. SLIPP ENTERTAINS

Honor Guest Was Her Sister, Mrs. C. H. Long, of Chicago

One of Wednesday's hostesses was Mrs. E. P. Slipp who entertained at her home, 302 Juniper street, in honor of her sister, Mrs. C. H. Long. The chief feature of the afternoon's enjoyment was a reading, "Sally Ann's Experience," given by Mrs. Louis Knudson in a very graphic manner as she pictured the different phases of the financial relations between husband and wife.

Eliza Calvert Hall states, "In writing Sally Ann's experience my purpose was to show the iniquity of the old common law of England in regard to the property rights of married women," while the Cosmopolitan magazine, July 1903, says, "The great popularity of Sally Ann's Experience is undoubtedly due to the fact that its theme is a matter that has touched directly or indirectly the life of nearly every woman."

Mrs. R. J. Hartley assisted the hostess in receiving and Mrs. Maria Slipp assisted in serving while the Misses Maybelle Grewcox, Corna Stickney, Kathryn Albright and Bernice Whiteley catered to the guests.

Outside guests were: Mrs. Long, Chicago, Mrs. Yancey Bartholow, Dallas, Texas, Mrs. Eckhart, Northwood, Iowa and Mrs. M. DeChon, Miami, Florida.

CHORUS OPENS SEASON

Celebrated Russian Cossack Chorus to Appear Here Afternoon of October 7

A celebrated musical organization, which has appeared before many of the crowned heads of Europe and has won highest commendation from leading musical critics in many countries, will appear here on the afternoon of October 7. The organization is the famous Russian Cossack chorus under the personal direction of Sergei Socoloff, and will appear here under auspices of the Brainerd Musical club.

Leading cities in Italy, France, Spain, Jugoslavia, Mexico and all of the Central American Republics have been extremely lavish in the praise of this internationally famous group.
The "Paris Soir" said, following the concert there in December, 1924: "It was the most admirable ensemble of voices ever heard in Paris, splendidly directed by Mr. Socoloff."
At the Royal Conservatorium of Music at Milan, the group won the following comment from the famous director, G. Gallignani: "Knowledge, warmth, exactitude of attacks and tunes are its features. The fusion of the accords are delightful."
The Rome "La Tribuna" stated: "Wonderful performers under the direction of artistically genial and military disciplined maestro Socoloff won a triumphal success."

The Madrid "El Imparcial" said: "Something new, real artistry, that wonders with its beautiful orchestral effects."
"El Universal" of Mexico City stated: "We condense our impression in only one and round word, 'Sovereignity.'"
The Panama "Star and Herald" stated: "Nerve in the history of Isthmian music have we had a recital or concert comparable to that of the Russian Cossack Chorus."

The repertoire of chorus comprises the compositions of Tchaikovsky, Borodine, Glinski, Rimsky-Korsakov, Rubinstein, Rachmaninoff, Mendelssohn, Veneziani, etc.

Birds Nest in School

A pair of blackbirds which built their nest on the clock in the gymnasium at Wincham Hall school, Losbeck-Graham, Cheshire, England, delighted the children by caring their young within the schoolroom. The birds gained access to the gymnasium through a small window near the roof which is usually left open. They have on many occasions fed their young while a lesson was being given.

Roughing It

"Roughing It" in this red-blooded age, consists in spending a week at a mountain shack where the plumbing isn't concealed and there isn't a single full-length mirror.—Los Angeles Times.

CHORUS OPENS SEASON

Celebrated Russian Cossack Chorus to Appear Here Afternoon of October 7

A celebrated musical organization which has appeared before many of the crowned heads of Europe and has won highest commendation from leading musical critics in many countries, will appear here on the afternoon of October 7. The organization is the famous Russian Cossack chorus under the personal direction of Sergei Socoloff, and will appear here under auspices of the Brainerd Musical club.

Leading cities in Italy, France, Spain, Jug-Slavia, Mexico and all of the Central American Republics have been extremely lavish in the praise of this internationally famous group.

The "Paris Soir" said, following the concert there in December, 1924: "It was the most admirable ensemble of voices ever heard in Paris, splendidly directed by Mr. Socoloff."

At the Royal Conservatorium of Music at Milan, the group won the following comment from the famous director, G. Galligani: "Knowledge, warmth, exactitude of attacks and tunes are its features. The fusion of the accents are delightful."

The Rome "La Tribuna" stated: "Wonderful performers under the direction of artistically genial and military disciplined maestro Socoloff won a triumphal success."

The Madrid "El Imparcial" said: "Something new, real artistry, that wondrous with its beautiful orchestral effects."

"El Universal" of Mexico City stated: "We condense our impression in only one and round word, 'Sovereignly.'"

The Panama "Star and Herald" stated: "Nevre in the history of Isthmian music have we had a recital or concert comparable to that of the Russian Cossack Chorus."

The repertoire of chorus comprises the compositions of Tchaikovsky, Borodine, Gluck, Rimsky-Korsakov, Rubinstein, Rachmaninoff, Mendelssohn, Veneziani, etc.

Birds Nest in School

A pair of blackbirds which built their nest on the clock in the gymnasium at Wincham Hall school, Leekstock-Graham, Cheshire, England, delighted the children by caring their young within the schoolroom. The birds gained access to the gymnasium through a small window near the roof which is usually left open. They have on many occasions fed their young while a lesson was being given.

ANSWERING A QUESTION

BECAUSE the problem of farm relief is largely related to foreign trade, a good many sincere onlookers find it difficult to get their bearings, as between tariff protection against foreign competition, on the one hand, and disposal of surplus major crops, on the other hand. Apparently such confusion exists in the mind of a correspondent in Winona, who writes: "If The Journal will answer this one question regarding farm relief, I shall gladly cast my ballot for Herbert Hoover." Here is the question:

How does Mr. Hoover propose to render the tariff on the major crops effective, when under his plan the loss on the surplus is to be borne by co-operatives whose membership is voluntary, so that the farmers who do not join will get the same higher prices as those who do, but at the same time will not have to stand any of the loss—the natural inducement, therefore, being not to join the co-operatives?

The answer is that the tariff readjustments are to be applied, not to our surplus crops, which, being exportable, cannot thus be assisted, but to foreign farm products which compete with our own.

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Hoover said:

An adequate tariff is the foundation of farm relief. Our consumers increase faster than our producers. The domestic market must be protected. Foreign products raised under low standards of living are today competing in our home markets. I would use my office and influence to give the farmer the full benefit of our historic tariff policy.

As The Journal not long ago pointed out, we are today "importing a million farms"—that is to say, we are importing products that might far better be produced on a million American farms. Among the more important of these are dressed meats, poultry and eggs, butter and butter substitutes, flaxseed and sugar.

It is obvious that, if the American farmer is enabled by tariff readjustments to raise more of these imported products and sell at a profit in the home market, he will at the same time reduce exportable surpluses, both by raising less of the export staples and using more of them at home.

The benefits of such tariff readjustments are not dependent upon co-operatives or on governmental assistance of them; they will come to all producers alike.

Mr. Hoover's plan of farm relief, then, rests on a tripod whose three legs are: Tariff readjustments to capture the home market for American products, instead of buying them, as now, abroad; governmental assistance to the farmer in controlling the marketing of his own products; development of inland waterways to reduce his carrying charges and thus add to the prices he gets. —Minneapolis Journal.

HOOVER IS A GOOD YOKE-LIFTER

SPEAKING in Iowa, Herbert Hoover, the Republican candidate for president, said:

The yoke that hangs around the neck of the American farmer needs to be lifted, and I will do everything in my power to lift it.

The American farmer, whose need is real and urgent, but who has been led into devotion to an impractical remedy which it is impossible to get and which if it were applied would do harm rather than good, will do well to hear that word from Mr. Hoover, and to reflect.

Study Mr. Hoover's character—his sympathy with the burdened of all climes and races, as illustrated by his war relief work that blazed a path of American glory around the world, his capacity to see and understand and solve human problems, his earnest and sincere application of everything that is in him to the problem he has set himself to solve.

Study Mr. Hoover's record, his achievements in private and public life, his profound sympathy with and understanding of the plain people from whom he sprang. Above all, study his record in the war and after the war, on which he has been attacked. You will find that he protected the American farmer during the war against a combination of the Allies to hold down the price of grain, and that after the war he broke down an attempt by the Allies to bar American grain from the German market.

BOOTLEGGING IN CANADA

THE brutally frank reports of the provincial liquor boards in Canada give no comfort to the man who argues that the modification of the Volstead law and the repeal of the eighteenth amendment will make for greater temperance, says the Lincoln Journal.

The Quebec commission says that sales of beer in that province increased a million gallons the last year. The Alberta board says permits to buy liquor increased from 60,000 the first year to 144,000 the third year. Arrests for drunkenness, according to the Saskatchewan board increased 125 per cent the first eight months, and that bootlegging increased 111 per cent the first year. The British Columbia board says as much liquor is sold by bootleggers as by the government stores, while Alberta reports that its greatest problem is the sale of moonshine in the country districts.

GOVERNOR THEODORE CHRISTIANSON in his address at Lindstrom took occasion to reply to Governor Smith. He charged that Governor Smith "doesn't want the St. Lawrence waterway," and if he is elected President the commission report to him will be favorable for the All-American route, opposed by the Middle West.

Hoover Saved American Consumers Many Millions by Peaceful Resistance.

HE CUT COFFEE BILL

Reduced Crude Rubber Cost to Country by More Than 500 Million Dollars.

WASHINGTON.—How Herbert Hoover as Secretary of Commerce waged a fight on foreign monopolies which had been controlling raw materials essential to industry, agriculture and homes of the United States is described in a pamphlet just issued by the Republican National Committee.

This struggle was one which affected every home, for the foreign monopolies not only levied a tax on certain products used in the home but also on other important articles of commerce. If it had been lost, it would have seriously menaced many branches of business, which made extensive use of these raw materials, thus affecting consumers.

Saved America Millions
The victory which Mr. Hoover achieved by peaceful means resulted in savings of hundreds of millions of dollars to the American consumer, the pamphlet points out.

"Governmentally-controlled foreign combinations had been set up in a number of raw materials which, because of our inability to produce, we must depend upon purchasing abroad," says the pamphlet. "Among them are rubber, coffee, nitrates, potash, sisal, camphor, iodine, mercury and long-staple cotton. These combinations fixed both production and prices."

Mr. Hoover's campaign was waged by showing business how to handle the problem largely by itself. He asked Congress for funds to investigate the foreign control, and also obtained authorization to use scientists from other Government departments.

Laboratories made studies of reclamation and development of substitutes while scientists sought new sources of these materials, it is shown. Other investigators gathered full data on availability of other territory to produce these essentials.

Government officials, Mr. Hoover and others, told the interested industries of their findings, and at the same time, without any clash with any foreign government or agency, let the nations of the world know how the United States was prepared to meet this monopolization policy.

Some of the results of these efforts, as cited by the pamphlet, are:

Broke Rubber Monopoly

Saved American rubber consumers upwards of $500,000,000 by action breaking the British control of rubber production and prices. This control is being abandoned and new sources of rubber development promise to hold the prices down.

Saved the American people about $100,000,000 in its bill for coffee through shifting purchases from Brazil to other sources to a sufficient degree to effect the decline.

Urged the growing of long-staple cotton in the United States to break the control exercised in Egypt over acreage and supplies.

Encouraged exploration for native beds of potash and aided in promoting the fixation of free nitrogen of the air to help relieve the American farmers from the levy imposed by Chile and the Franco-German potash trust.

By demonstrating to the other nations that the United States is determined not to tolerate foreign control, and by the example afforded in the case of rubber, the signal has been given for abandonment of others of

REPUBLICANS GIVE FARMERS HOME MARKET MONOPOLY

WASHINGTON.—The American farmer under Republican administration has had practically a monopoly of his home market. In this protected market he disposes of 95 per cent of his products at prices higher than are paid elsewhere in the world for like products. This is pointed out in the Republican campaign textbook.

The complete book is being printed in installments of which the first is devoted entirely to agriculture, and includes pertinent extracts from Herbert Hoover's acceptance address, the agricultural plank of the Kansas City platform and other pertinent data relative to the farm situation.

In addition to this, there is a recital of the Republican party's constructive legislation in behalf of agriculture since 1920, a provision intended to show that the promises now being made to the farmers by Mr. Hoover and Senator Curtis spring from a sympathetic attitude and therefore will be fulfilled in good faith by the Republicans.

The problems of agriculture are treated from an economic rather than a political viewpoint, and emphasis is laid on the freedom from economic fallacies of the agricultural legislation already passed by Republican congresses which includes 24 measures since March, 1921, when the Republicans came into office.

Mr. Hoover, the pamphlet points out, has consistently clung to the position "that economic progress must depend upon the driving force of competition." He has reiterated that:

"The problem should be met on the ground of what in the long run will produce good will and prosperity to the entire world, for no single nation can dissociate its prosperity from the prosperity and good will of all of them."

And his method has sought to bring this about, rather than to develop trade wars, in which there lie the seeds of international friction and a menace to friendly relations.

Heed N. Y. Farmers' Experience With Al Smith, Empire State Agriculturist Warns Middle West

Charles S. Wilson Points Out Rural District Hostility to Governor in His Own State for William H. Hill, New York Hoover Campaign Manager.

"My advice to the farmers of the Middle West is that they find out what we farmers in New York State think about Governor Smith," declares Charles S. Wilson, former State Commissioner of Agriculture.

Mr. Wilson and his brother-in-law operate a 690-acre farm at Hall, Ontario County, New York.

"New York State farmers know, on the basis of Governor Smith's record, that he will not do for agriculture what Herbert Hoover will do," declared former Commissioner Wilson.

"I think the Governor's attitude toward the Council of Farms and Markets is typical. This council was provided for when I was Commissioner. It was put through by the farm interests of the State, who felt that they would be safe with farmers administering the Department of Agriculture than with politicians doing it. They looked upon the council as a sort of board of directors to the department."

"Governor Smith, despite the expressed desires of the farmers, repeatedly recommended that the council be abolished. He was not in favor of direct representation for farmers. 'The farmers of this State are outnumbered as much trouble as the farmers of other States. I believe that conditions cannot be remedied unless we have greater tariff protection on some products and better marketing facilities so that we don't have to sell in a buyers' market.'

"Herbert Hoover is the man to give us this kind of relief. My advice to the farmers of the Middle West is that they find out what we farmers in New York think about the Governor before they vote for him for president of the United States."

A collection attorney received an account accompanied by a request that he "move heaven and earth to get this scoundrel." He replied: "There would be no use in moving either locality in this instance. The scoundrel died last week." —Philadelphian.

Consider the diplodocus

The diplodocus was the most gigantic animal that ever lived. It was eighty-five feet long and weighed scores of tons. Yet despite its tremendous bulk it had a brain the size of an English walnut.

Millions of years ago the diplodocus flourished. But when conditions changed, it was unable to adapt itself to a new existence. Other animals, less strong, but more intelligent, invaded its domain. And so, with the unceasing march of progress, its race died out and vanished.

It is just as necessary today as it was in the Upper Jurassic period to keep abreast of the times. Conditions are changing under our very eyes. New inventions, new products are constantly being brought forward to make life easier and happier. If we do not take advantage of them, we fall behind the procession.

CARE OF VETERANS PROMISED BY HOOVER

WASHINGTON.—Addressing a delegation of veterans representing the various war service organizations of the District of Columbia, Herbert Hoover declared against reduction of expenditures for the care of veterans. He approved the policy of Republican administrations during the last seven years in showing ex-service men the utmost liberality.

Mr. Hoover's remarks to the delegation were as follows:

"I believe all of America recognizes our national obligation to our veterans. The country today is providing pensions and compensation, to $35,292 men and women, with insurance and adjusted compensation to over four million more. The total expenditures of the government in this direction now exceed $576,943,000 annually, and represent the one important division of the government where the policy has been justifiably to increase rather than to reduce expenditures. This has also been the one important division of the government where the drive for reduction of expenditures has been applied only for economy in its administration—not against the veterans. It is the one division where large measure of increased expenditure of the government has taken place during the past seven years. This is as it should be. This government must not be extravagant but it must be just."

ANSWERING A QUESTION

BECAUSE the problem of farm relief is largely related to foreign trade, a good many sincere onlookers find it difficult to get their bearings, as between tariff protection against foreign competition, on the one hand, and disposal of surplus major crops, on the other hand. Apparently such confusion exists in the mind of a correspondent in Winona, who writes: "If The Journal will answer this one question regarding farm relief, I shall gladly cast my ballot for Herbert Hoover." Here is the question:

How does Mr. Hoover propose to render the tariff on the major crops effective, when under his plan the loss on the surplus is to be borne by co-operatives whose membership is voluntary, so that the farmers who do not join will get the same higher prices as those who do, but at the same time will not have to stand any of the loss—the natural inducement, therefore, being not to join the co-operatives?

The answer is that the tariff readjustments are to be applied, not to our surplus crops, which, being exportable, cannot thus be assisted, but to foreign farm products which compete with our own.

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Hoover said:

An adequate tariff is the foundation of farm relief. Our consumers increase faster than our producers. The domestic market must be protected. Foreign products raised under low standards of living are today competing in our home markets. I would use my office and influence to give the farmer the full benefit of our historic tariff policy.

As The Journal not long ago pointed out, we are today "importing a million farms"—that is to say, we are importing products that might far better be produced on a million American farms. Among the more important of these are dressed meats, poultry and eggs, butter and butter substitutes, flaxseed and sugar.

It is obvious that, if the American farmer is enabled by tariff readjustments to raise more of these imported products and sell at a profit in the home market, he will at the same time reduce exportable surpluses, both by raising less of the export staples and using more of them at home.

The benefits of such tariff readjustments are not dependent upon co-operatives or on governmental assistance of them; they will come to all producers alike.

Mr. Hoover's plan of farm relief, then, rests on a tripod whose three legs are: Tariff readjustments to capture the home market for American products, instead of buying them, as now, abroad; governmental assistance to the farmer in controlling the marketing of his own products; development of inland waterways to reduce his carrying charges and thus add to the prices he gets. —Minneapolis Journal.

HOOVER IS A GOOD YOKE-LIFTER

SPEAKING in Iowa, Herbert Hoover, the Republican candidate for president, said:

The yoke that hangs around the neck of the American farmer needs to be lifted, and I will do everything in my power to lift it.

The American farmer, whose need is real and urgent, but who has been led into devotion to an impractical remedy which it is impossible to get and which if it were applied would do harm rather than good, will do well to hear that word from Mr. Hoover, and to reflect.

Study Mr. Hoover's character—his sympathy with the burdened of all climes and races, as illustrated by his war relief work that blazed a path of American glory around the world, his capacity to see and understand and solve human problems, his earnest and sincere application of everything that is in him to the problem he has set himself to solve.

BRAINERD HOLDS HEAVY CATHEDRAL ELEVEN, 6 TO 6

LOCALS' METHOD OF ATTACK RESULTS IN LAST QUARTER TIE

PASS, GABIOU-SWANSON BRINGS BALL TO SIX YARD FROM CENTER OF FIELD

FULLER CRASHES OVER FOR A TOUCHDOWN; ST. CLOUD SCORES EARLY

Clean football, coupled with strategic plays gave the Brainerd high school football squad a moral victory over the St. Cloud Cathedral yesterday afternoon at the Granite City when Coach Kasch's men evened their opponents by the count of 6 to 6.

Considered weaker than the St. Cloud aggregation at the outset, the locals demonstrated to the 400 St. Cloud fans in attendance their power as equal to that of the strong Cathedral eleven. Brainerd overcame a decided handicap in weight by offering an aerial attack and end runs.

The game started out with Brainerd marching down the field, making two consecutive first downs. Brainerd lost the ball on fourth down when a forward pass which it completed went out of bounds. Swanson received this pass with an open field but was brought back because of receiving the ball out of bounds. St. Cloud Cathedral then took the ball and with a completion of a forward pass, and a first down plus a penalty brought the ball to the eight yard line from which it was taken over on the fourth down. This was the only time that the St. Cloud team was near the Brainerd goal. The Brainerd line and backfield strengthened after this first touchdown by Cathedral in the first quarter and from then on played steadier football, varying end runs and forward passes.

The second quarter was battled mostly in the middle of the field, with St. Cloud slightly outplaying Brainerd through the efforts of their hard and heavy hitting line. In the third quarter, Brainerd started in with a new drive and at the end of the quarter had the ball on St. Cloud's one yard line.

The yard line was gained following a play from center of the field which resulted in a pass from Gabiou to Swanson which Swanson carried up to the six yard line before he was downed. This was the most spectacular play of the game.

On the first play of the last quarter Fuller took the ball over on a line plunge for Brainerd's only touchdown which tied the score. For Brainerd, Gabiou, Swanson and Fuller played a good game in the backfield. Dybvik played his usual game and should improve. In Brainerd's line Guin, Hautala and Larson played the best role. All in all the Brainerd line had the hard task of opposing a much heavier Cathedral line.

The game was a close one as the score indicates and gave valuable experience to the new Brainerd team. The fact that Brainerd came from behind and scored with a touchdown in the last quarter showed that the Brainerd boys kept on driving until the game ended. To date the team has that quality of coming from behind which is a very good quality for any team to have.

Next Monday night Brainerd will start preparation for the Little Falls game here next Friday. Little Falls will offer much more opposition than it has in the past and Coach Kasch will not leave any points undone for this game. The fact that the Cathedral game was scheduled at a late date made a complete change in the practices to take place this next week. Work on fundamentals will be continued and in addition a lineup of plays will be given for the offense for the rest of the season games.

The lineup:
Guin, lc.; Paine, lt.; Abrahamson, lg.; Hautala, c.; Foster, rg.; Geist, rt.; Goederz, re.; Gabiou, q.; Dybvik, lb.; Swanson, rh.; Fuller, rb.
Subs: Garvey for Paine, Larson for Foster, Halvorson for Dybvik.

Yesterday's Hero—Kiki Cuyler, Chicago Cubs outfielder, whose triple in the ninth with Butler and McGuire on bases, aided in giving the Chicago Cubs a 7 to 5 victory over the New York Giants.

The New York Yankees won the American league pennant by defeating the Detroit Tigers 11 to 6. Babe Ruth hit his fifty-third home run of the season in the eighth inning.

By winning a 10 to 3 victory over the Boston Braves, the St. Louis Cardinals virtually clinched the pennant in the National League.

The Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 5, but lost their chance to win the pennant as the Yanks also won.

Alvin Crowder chalked up his twenty-first victory of the season when the St. Louis Browns defeated the Washington Senators 4 to 3.

Before less than 200 fans, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians 1 to 0.

2 BIG 10 TEAMS TO PRY LID OFF 1928 SEASON

NON-CONFERENCE GAMES TO GIVE SOME INDICATION OF STRENGTH

SOUTH CAROLINA TO INVADE CHICAGO UNIVERSITY CAMP

Chicago, Sept. 29—(UP)—Two Big Ten teams—Chicago and Indiana—will pry off the lid of the 1928 football season today in non-conference games which should give some indication of the strength they have developed after two weeks' practice. South Carolina will invade the Chicago university camp with the advantage of already having broken the ice with a 19 to 0 victory over Erskine, a week ago. In addition to the first string eleven he has assembled a reserve squad which will meet Ripon in a night cap session. Indiana, with a conference game scheduled with Michigan at Ann Arbor for Oct. 13, will face Wabash at Bloomington today in the first test for both. Coach Page has a strong nucleus of veterans about which he has built a team rated high in Big Ten pre-season standing.

Coach Knute Rockne will send his varsity into a season opener with Loyola of New Orleans which is expected to determine the makeup of the Notre Dame eleven for its struggle with Wisconsin at Madison next week.

The rest of the middle western schedule includes:
De Paul at Detroit.
Penn College at Grinnell.
Simpson at Haskell.
Bethany at Kansas Aggies.
Kalamazoo at Michigan State.

CONTEST SET BARRING ONLY REAL MIRACLE

SERIES SCHEDULED TO START NEXT THURSDAY, OCTOBER 4

YANKEES CLINCHED PENNANT, DEFEATED DETROIT TIGERS 11 TO 6

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
New York, Sept. 29—The major league pennant races are practically over, and barring a miracle, the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals will meet in the world series, scheduled to start next Thursday.

The Yankees clinched the American League pennant by their victory over the Detroit Tigers yesterday, 11 to 6. The Cardinals have to win only one more game to capture the National League championship, or, if the New York Giants lose today, the effect will be the same.

By defeating the Tigers, the Yankees won their sixth pennant of the past eight years. They will enter the world series crippled by the absence of Earl Combs, probably the greatest center fielder in the game today, and with Herb Pennock, Babe Ruth and Tony Lazzeri suffering from injuries which may seriously impair their value in the post-season classic.

Combs fractured his wrist in Thursday's ball game, Pennock may be unable to pitch at all, Ruth is limping, and Lazzeri has water on the shoulder, which makes it extremely dangerous for him to use his arm.

When the St. Louis Cardinals scored seven runs in the fifteenth inning at Braves field yesterday, they practically clinched the National League pennant. The standing today is:

|           | W. | L. | Pct. |
|-----------|----|----|------|
| St. Louis | 94 | 58 | .618 |
| New York  | 92 | 60 | .605 |

The only chance for the Giants to come through would be to defeat the Chicago Cubs today while the Cardinals were losing to the Boston Braves and then defeat St. Louis at the Polo grounds Sunday.

The New York National League club faces an almost insurmountable handicap, yet stranger things have happened in this topsy-turvy season than that John J. McGraw should bring his club through to another pennant.

If the Cardinals win the National League pennant, they will enter the world series a badly tired ball club. Their strength has been taxed even more than that of the Pittsburgh Pirates a year ago, and the Pirates were so worn out that they were easy victims for the Yankees in four straight games.

CARDINALS WIN PENNANT IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York, Sept. 29—(UP)—The St. Louis Cardinals won the National League pennant today when the New York Giants were eliminated from the race by the Chicago Cubs 6 to 2.

Even should the Giants win from the Cardinals in the final game at the Polo grounds Sunday, New York would still fall a few points shy of tying St. Louis.

The Cardinals will meet the New York Yankees in the world series opening at the Yankee stadium on Thursday.

FEATHERWEIGHT CROWN HELD BY ANDRE ROUTIS

OUTFIGHTS TONY CANZONERI OF BROOKLYN 15 ROUNDS

ROUTIS, STRONG AND FULL OF FIGHT, CARRIED BATTLE TO OPPONENT

New York, Sept. 29—(UP)—The featherweight championship of the world which Eugene Criqui won so gallantly and lost with equal gallantry a few weeks later some years ago once more is held by a Frenchman, little Andre Routis.

Outfighting Tony Canzoneri of Brooklyn through 14 torrid rounds before a crowd of about 10,000 at Madison Square Garden last night Routis won the judges' verdict and carried off the title.

The first championship battle of the indoor season proved fatal to Canzoneri, who is rapidly growing out of the featherweight division and made the weight for last night's fight only with the greatest difficulty.

Routis, strong and full of fight, carried the battle to his opponent from the first bell. Canzoneri, able to outbox his man at long range, took a lot of punishment when the Frenchman moved in close and beat away for the body with both hands.

After New Laurels

WHO WON THE BROAD JUMP AT AMSTERDAM AN' WHO IS OUT FOR THE FOOTBALL TEAM AT GEORGIA TECH THIS YEAR—

© 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

By QUIN HALL.

HAVING fulfilled his ambition of winning a place on the 1928 United States Olympic team and having shattered all existing records at that time in the running broad jump at Amsterdam, Ed Hamm, the youthful Georgia Tech star, may now turn his attention to playing a little football.

Young Hamm entered the Atlanta technology institute this fall as a senior. For the past three years he has not been a candidate for the football team despite the fact that he played with the Leno, Ark., high school team and was noted as one of the best ball carriers in the interscholastic ranks. Flashy, swift and hard running, he made an early reputation for himself on the high school gridirons only to drop out of the football spotlight in his first year at Georgia Tech.

Coach Bill Alexander, of Georgia Tech, knew of the Leno high school youngster's ability, but he also realized that the boy held great promise as a jumper and despite the fact that Alexander always could use good backfield material he encouraged the lad to become a field star. He not only encouraged him but he aided him in every way possible.

The loss of Hamm on the gridiron for three years was well justified when the husky young Southerner bettered by six inches the Olympic broad jump record of A. L. Gutterson that had stood for sixteen years.

Having won the highest honor in the broad jump, young Hamm feels that now, in his last year at Georgia Tech, he can devote his efforts to helping win football games. He is well built for the gridiron. He has brawn, stamina and endurance and can run a 100 yards in football togs in a trifle over ten seconds, having often run the distance under ten flat on the track. And Coach Alexander welcomes such speed in his backfield.

Hamm was first attracted to the broad jump by watching De Hart Hubbard, the famous Cincinnati negro athlete, at Stagg Field in Chicago, three years ago. That afternoon Hubbard leaped 25 feet 10 1/2 inches and it was the consensus that the new record would stand for many years unless the negro marvel succeeded in breaking it himself. Three years afterward in the Harvard stadium, at Cambridge, the youthful spectator, who had been attracted by Hubbard's ability on Stagg Field, set a new world's record of 25 feet 11 1/2 inches. Hubbard was in that final tryout before the start for Amsterdam but failed to approach the Southerner's jump.

Hamm hopes to better the record made at Cambridge and feels that 26 feet, the mark attained by Silvio Cator, of Hayti, in Paris, Sept. 9, is a mark that will be reached consistently in the future. Eight times during the past season he has cleared better than 25 feet and he is determined to better Cator's new record. He claims that his ability in the event is mostly the result of application and a willingness to work hard. Some credit must also go to the terrific speed which he accumulates in approaching the take-off.

But right now young Hamm is devoting himself to football and the gridiron fans who follow the destinies of Georgia Tech will undoubtedly be thrilled by his work on the striped field during the coming weeks.

Possibly that thrill will be greater than the one experienced when the news of his victory at Amsterdam was cabled over—but probably not for young Hamm.

BRAINERD HOLDS HEAVY CATHEDRAL ELEVEN, 6 TO 6

LOCALS' METHOD OF ATTACK RESULTS IN LAST QUARTER TIE

PASS, GABIOU-SWANSON BRINGS BALL TO SIX YARD FROM CENTER OF FIELD

FULLER CRASHES OVER FOR A TOUCHDOWN; ST. CLOUD SCORES EARLY

Clean football, coupled with strategic plays gave the Brainerd high school football squad a moral victory over the St. Cloud Cathedral yesterday afternoon at the Granite City when Coach Kasch's men evented their opponents by the count of 6 to 6.

Considered weaker than the St. Cloud aggregation at the outset, the locals demonstrated to the 400 St. Cloud fans in attendance their power as equal to that of the strong Cathedral eleven. Brainerd overcame a decided handicap in weight by offering an aerial attack and end runs.

The game started out with Brainerd marching down the field, making two consecutive first downs. Brainerd lost the ball on fourth down when a forward pass which it completed went out of bounds. Swanson received this pass with an open field but was brought back because of receiving the ball out of bounds. St. Cloud Cathedral then took the ball and with a completion of a forward pass, and a first down plus a penalty brought the ball to the eight yard line from which it was taken over on the fourth down. This was the only time that the St. Cloud team was near the Brainerd goal. The Brainerd line and backfield strengthened after this first touchdown by Cathedral in the first quarter and from then on played steadier football, varying end runs and forward passes.

The second quarter was battled mostly in the middle of the field, with St. Cloud slightly outplaying Brainerd through the efforts of their hard and heavy hitting line. In the third quarter, Brainerd started in with a new drive and at the end of the quarter had the ball on St. Cloud's one yard line.

The yard line was gained following a play from center of the field which resulted in a pass from Gabiou to Swanson which Swanson carried up to the six yard line before he was downed. This was the most spectacular play of the game.

On the first play of the last quarter Fuller took the ball over on a line plunge for Brainerd's only touchdown which tied the score. For Brainerd, Gabiou, Swanson and Fuller played a good game in the backfield. Dybvik played his usual game and should improve. In Brainerd's line Guin, Hautala and Larson played the best role. All in all the Brainerd line had the hard task of opposing a much heavier Cathedral line.

The game was a close one as the score indicates and gave valuable experience to the new Brainerd team. The fact that Brainerd came from behind and scored with a touchdown in the last quarter showed that the Brainerd boys kept on driving until the game ended. To date the team has that quality of coming from behind which is a very good quality for any team to have.

Next Monday night Brainerd will start preparation for the Little Falls game here next Friday. Little Falls will offer much more opposition that it has in the past and Coach Kasch will not leave any points undone for this game. The fact that the Cathedral game was scheduled at a late date made a complete change in the practices to take place this next week. Work on fundamentals will be continued and in addition a lineup of plays will be given for the offense for the rest of the season games.

The lineup:
Subs: Garvey for Paine, Larson for Foster, Halvorson for Dybvik.

Yesterday's Hero—Kiki Cuyler, Chicago Cubs outfielder, whose triple in the ninth with Butler and McGuire on bases, aided in giving the Chicago Cubs a 7 to 5 victory over the New York Giants.

The New York Yankees won the American League pennant by defeating the Detroit Tigers 11 to 6. Babe Ruth hit his fifty-third home run of the season in the eighth inning.

By winning a 10 to 3 victory over the Boston Braves, the St. Louis Cardinals virtually clinched the pennant in the National League.

The Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 5, but lost their chance to win the pennant as the Yankees also won.

Alvin Crowder chalked up his twenty-first victory of the season when the St. Louis Browns defeated the Washington Senators 4 to 3.

Before less than 200 fans, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians 1 to 0.

FEATHERWEIGHT CROWN HELD BY ANDRE ROUTIS

OUTFIGHTS TONY CANZONERI OF BROOKLYN 15 ROUNDS

ROUTIS, STRONG AND FULL OF FIGHT, CARRIED BATTLE TO OPPONENT

New York, Sept. 29.—(UP)—The featherweight championship of the world which Eugene Criqui won so gallantly and lost with equal gallantry a few weeks later some years ago once more is held by a Frenchman, Little Andre Routis.

Outfighting Tony Canzoneri of Brooklyn through 14 torrid rounds before a crowd of about 10,000 at Madison Square Garden last night Routis won the judges' verdict and carried off the title.

The first championship battle of the indoor season proved fatal to Canzoneri, who is rapidly growing out of the featherweight division and made the weight for last night's fight only with the greatest difficulty.

Routis, strong and full of fight, carried the battle to his opponent from the first bell. Canzoneri, able to outbox his man at long range, took a lot of punishment when the Frenchman moved in close and beat away for the body with both hands.

After New Laurels

WHO WON TH' BROAD JUMP AT AMSTERDAM AN' WHO IS OUT FOR TH' FOOTBALL TEAM AT GEORGIA TECH THIS YEAR

By QUIN HALL.
HAVING fulfilled his ambition of winning a place on the 1928 United States Olympic team and having shattered all existing records at that time in the running broad jump at Amsterdam, Ed Hamm, the youthful Georgia Tech star, may now turn his attention to playing a little football.

Young Hamm entered the Atlanta technology institute this fall as a senior. For the past three years he has not been a candidate for the football team despite the fact that he played with the Loneke, Ark., high school team and was noted as one of the best ball carriers in the interscholastic ranks. Flashy, swift and hard running, he made an early reputation for himself on the high school gridirons only to drop out of the football spotlight in his first year at Georgia Tech.

Coach Bill Alexander, of Georgia Tech, knew of the Loneke high school youngster's ability, but he also realized that the boy held great promise as a jumper and despite the fact that Alexander always could use good backfield material he encouraged the lad to become a field star. He not only encouraged him but he aided him in every way possible.

The loss of Hamm on the gridiron for three years was well justified when the husky young Southerner bettered by six inches the Olympic broad jump record of A. L. Gutterson that had stood for sixteen years.

Having won the highest honor in the broad jump, young Hamm feels that now, in his last year at Georgia Tech, he can devote his efforts to helping win football games. He is well built for the gridiron. He has brawn, stamina and endurance and can run a 100 yards in football togs in a trifle over ten seconds, having often run the distance under ten flat on the track. And Coach Alexander welcomes such speed in his backfield.

Hamm was first attracted to the broad jump by watching De Hart Hubbard, the famous Cincinnati negro athlete, at Stagg Field in Chicago, three years ago. That afternoon Hubbard leaped 25 feet 10 1/2 inches and it was the consensus that the new record would stand for many years unless the negro marvel succeeded in breaking it himself. Three years afterward in the Harvard Stadium, at Cambridge, the youthful spectator, who had been attracted by Hubbard's ability on Stagg Field, set a new world's record of 25 feet 11 1/2 inches. Hubbard was in that final tryout before the start for Amsterdam but failed to approach the Southerner's jump.

Hamm hopes to better the record made at Cambridge and feels that 26 feet, the mark attained by Silvio Cator, of Hayti, in Paris, Sept. 9, is a mark that will be reached consistently in the future. Eight times during the past season he has cleared better than 25 feet and he is determined to better Cator's new record.

He claims that his ability in the event is mostly the result of application and a willingness to work hard. Some credit must also go to the terrific speed which he accumulates in approaching the take-off.

But right now young Hamm is devoting himself to football and the gridiron fans who follow the destinies of Georgia Tech will undoubtedly be thrilled by his work on the striped field during the coming weeks.

Possibly that thrill will be greater than the one experienced when the news of his victory at Amsterdam was cabled over—but probably not for young Hamm.

Agricultural Hints

Broilers should be marketed at from 1½ to 2¼ pounds live weight.

Sweet clover should be grazed so closely that stock eat the new, tender shoots all the time, or it will get tough.

A profitable practice is to give little pigs grana in addition to their mother's milk after they are three weeks old, and that can best be done by means of self-feeders in a pig creep.

For hogs, alfalfa is the best pasture obtainable, furnishing a maximum of ideal forage throughout the season, even in dry weather. As many as 20 shots can be carried on an acre.

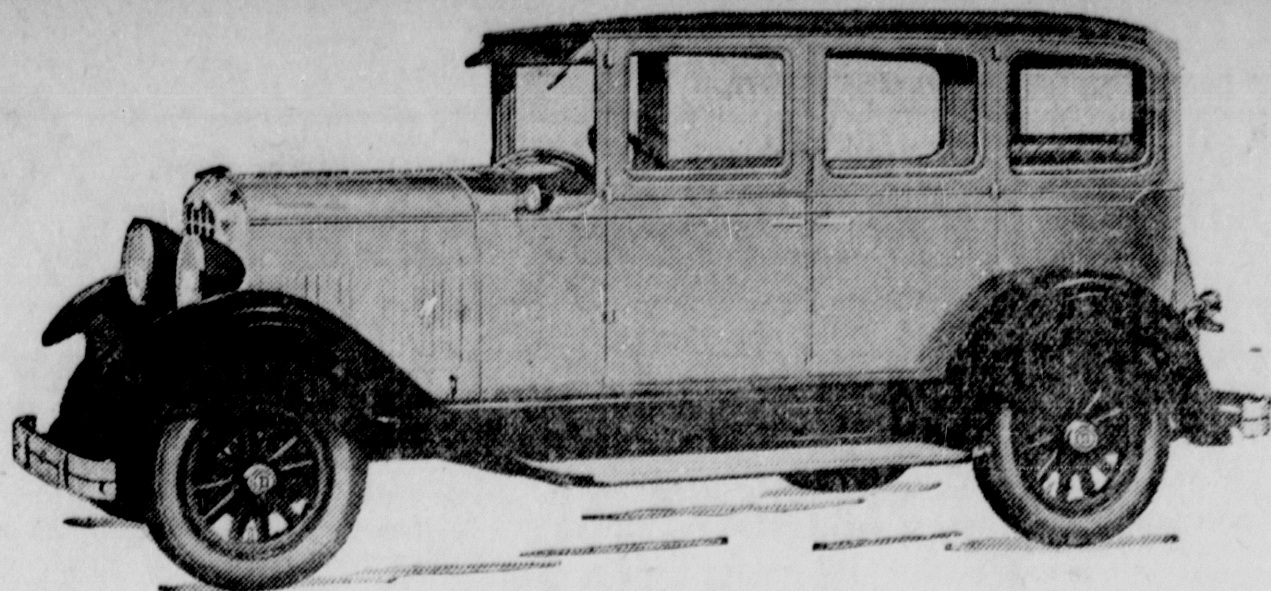

Seed wheat may be treated for smut with copper carbonate dust and stored until seedling time. Use plenty of copper carbonate and be sure that the wheat stays in the treater until every kernel is thoroughly coated with the dust.

New fields of alfalfa should not be pastured. If the alfalfa has been seeded alone and the weeds become numerous, the field can be cut high when the alfalfa plants are just coming into bloom. Do not cut the alfalfa if there are only a few weeds.

A thorough examination of the interior of the poultry house for mites and bed bugs may reveal legions of these unwelcome guests. If they are present, there is a good steady job ahead getting rid of them. Roosts, roost supports, and rear walls should be painted with pure carbolineum, using two or three applications if necessary.

And he learned about actresses Greta Nissen respectively. Mulhall is featured in the title role of this First National comedy-drama, which is coming Sunday to the Lyceum theatre. Miss Nissen plays opposite him.

Dies in Air Crash

Removing Photographs

The bureau of standards says that photographs mounted with paste may be removed by soaking in water without injury to the photograph. If starch paste has been used, several days' soaking may be necessary. If dry mounted, a hot flatiron may be used to soften the shellac and the print removed while hot.

FIGURES DISPEL A SMITH MYTH

Returns Indicate the Governor Makes Poor Showing in Rural New York.

HAS BEEN LOSING GROUND

Agricultural Districts Vote Against Him—Strength Diminishes Rapidly From 1922 Peak.

Election statistics mark the fact that the great political popularity of Governor Smith in his own State is a Democratic fiction.

He has gained public support as the State executive only in New York City, and he has invariably failed to gain it outside of that city. As candidate for Governor he would have been defeated, outside of New York City, at each of the four elections where that city gave him the office, and usually he would have been snowed under. He would have failed by net losses ranging from 93,000 to 410,000 votes.

Election statistics show that he has been a local leader only. He has never become a State leader because he has never gained the confidence of the State at large. Without the indispensable support of the Tammany organization in New York he would have remained a small factor in the politics of his State—a mere local politician.

The same statistics manifest that the last two of Smith's elections are far from proving that he has made any gain in the confidence of the State at large. On the contrary, these last two elections prove that he has lost a considerable share of the support he had previously received in the districts outside of Tammany control.

—New York Times, New York

State, but he carried thirteen of the fifty-seven up-State Counties. In the presidential election year of 1924 he captured but one up-State county—Albany, the official home county of the party in power.

Two years later, in 1926, he recovered no more than three of the twelve up-State counties lost in 1924; and he lost the State, outside of his usual Tammany controlled local field in New York City, by upwards of three times as many votes as he lost in the one year (1922) when he sought to become a real State leader. That is, at his last election, two years ago, he lost up-State by 234,350 votes, as against his corresponding loss of only 93,278 votes in 1922.

The indisputable figures of the election returns thus record that, despite Smith's national ambitions, he has, during his last two terms as Governor, retired a long distance backward from his desired, but unattained, post as a true State leader, to his old, original rank as a successful city politician.

MISS PERSONALITY COMING TO PARK

Ruth Haga Wins Way to Brainerd
With Stage Contract From Opportunity Contest

Little Norwegian Girl Finds Key to
Northwest Fame in Borrowed
Dress and Own Smile

A little Norwegian girl in a borrowed dress smiled and sang so engagingly that the judges in the Tribune-Public opportunity contest recently held at the Minnesota theatre, Minneapolis, just had to capitulate and award her the prize.

She was Ruth Haga and she had never appeared on a theatre stage but twice before in her life. Those two times were on a couple of amateur nights in a St. Paul theatre.

As a grand prize for winning this contest which was open to all girls of Minneapolis between the ages of 18 and 26 who desired a stage career, Miss Haga was given a four weeks contract on the stage of the Minnesota theatre appearing in Public revues.

Shortly after winning the grand prize Miss Haga said, "Maybe I'll go to New York, but I can't believe it, but I really wish they'd let me get some experience on the F. & R. circuit first."

And her wish came true. After completing her four weeks contract on the stage of the Minnesota, Ted Bolnick of the F. & R. booking office presented her with a six week's contract under which she will appear on every town on the F. & R. vaudeville circuit.

Miss Haga will be one of the featured stars on the vaudeville program at the Park theatre this Sunday, matinee and night. The picture will be Dolores Del Rio in "No Other Woman."

ROAD CONDITIONS CONTINUE GOOD

That road conditions throughout the state continue good, is indicated by the weekly road condition report issued by the Minnesota Highway department today. A few stretches in the northern part of the state are still poor, due to recent heavy rains, but all are passable.

Detailed reports showing conditions in Brainerd Lake Region follow:

Firemen Escape Injury

Fire gutted the entire inside of the two story frame dwelling owned by George Dubois, 1123 Sixth street south, early today, the flames being so intense as to prevent the firemen from entering the building. A low estimate of the damage done was placed at $1,500 this morning.

The house was unoccupied at the time, Mr. and Mrs. Dubois having left the house yesterday for the country for a few days. So general was the fire when the firemen arrived that it was difficult to ascertain just where the fire did start or from what cause. Furniture and fixtures were destroyed in the path of the flames.

Firemen attempting to enter the flaming building narrowly escaped injury when the front and rear doors crashed before them, the flames shooting around them.

The alarm was turned in at 3:55 a. m. by Fritz Kinsmiller who saw the house in flames as he was on his way to the railway station. He informed a telephone operator who turned in the call to the Brainerd fire department. Fifteen firemen fought the flames for one hour.

Two oil stations, the Home Oil Co. station at the corner of Tamarack and South Sixth street, and the Sinclair oil station on the corner of Laurel and North Fourth streets, were broken into by burglars some time during the night, police reported today.

The money drawers at each station were rifled although the loot taken was small. At the Home Oil station 30 to 40 cents in pennies were taken while at the Sinclair station between four and five dollars were taken.

The buildings were entered by way of the rear windows which were broken in such a manner as to permit the burglars to release the window locks. Footprints below the windows indicate that two men, both large, entered the stations. The same two are believed to have executed the two robberies.

Church School and Other Organizations Are in Healthy Condition

At the annual meeting of the First Congregational church last Thursday evening an optimistic mood prevailed. All reports for the past year were very encouraging. More new members have united with the church during the past year than in any one year for a long time. The church school, the Christian Endeavor society, the ladies' aid society, the Priscillas and the Missionary society are all in healthy condition. A large floating debt has been nearly wiped out, having been reduced by $1,400. Extensive repairs and improvements on the property were reported, also an increase in the minister's salary. The following officers were elected:

Clerk—Dr. G. H. Ribbel.

Deacons — Dr. R. A. Hallquist, Martin Anderson.

Deaconesses — Mrs. Christian Bruhn, Mrs. Herbert Paine.

Trustees — G. D. LaBar, D. E. Whitney, J. P. Anderson, J. H. Kinney, F. W. Wieland.

Committee to Investigate Sources of Local Interference

Organization of a Brainerd Radio club in the interests of Brainerd radio owners took place at a meeting at the court house Wednesday. Officers elected for the ensuing year follow:

President—D. E. Whitney.

Vice President—A. G. Anderson.

Secretary—Dr. A. K. Cohen.

Treasurer—Milo D. Rose.

Brainerd has approximately 700 radios in use representing approximately 25 per cent of the homes. During the last four years local interference has been so pronounced as to make reception impossible at times. The organization has pledged itself to locate the trouble and with proper assistance correct it.

A committee was appointed with authority to employ experts to locate the interference. The members met with the water and light board last evening and received assurance of wholehearted cooperation.

Another committee is in communication with other progressive communities who have radio ordinances. It is hoped that a radio ordinance will be perfected for Brainerd to be later presented to the city council for adoption.

Another committee is endeavoring to unite all radio owners into a strong workable organization for the betterment of radio reception.

It was shown by radio experts that poor flat iron cords, electric bed pads, the contact of tree branches with electric wires and regenerative radio sets are sources of much local interferences both to the owner's set and his neighbor's, as well as loss of electric power.

Another meeting will be held Monday, October 8, at which time reports will be made of results accomplished. Everybody interested in radio reception should attend.

BEER, FLAPJACKS ADD PUNCH TO EARLY DAY ENTERTAINMENT

Flapjacks for breakfast with beer as the accompanying beverage proved too "active" for Emil Lindfors, northeast Brainerd yesterday morning.

He was picked up at the Lowell school grounds near noon yesterday by Officer Erick Graft who pushed his way through a large crowd of school children, teachers, and residents nearby to find Emil in the midst of entertaining them all.

"Were you drunk," inquired Judge J. H. Warner this morning in municipal court as Lindfors appeared to answer to the charge of intoxication.

"No, I just felt sort of 'buzzy' in my head," replied the defendant.

"I could smell liquor on his breath when I arrested him," said Officer Graft, "he was not disorderly, just entertaining."

Lindfors stated that some mornings he was unable to eat anything so he drank beer for his breakfast. Other mornings he had flapjacks with it.

"I drank only two quarts of beer yesterday morning," said he.

"Are you sure you do not sell beer," questioned Chief of Police Templeton.

"No, but I made it for my own use, I will throw away now what beer I have," replied Lindfors.

Judge Warner wrote "fnis" to the episode by making the fine $5 and costs.

Northwest Fame in Borrowed
Dress and Own Smile

A little Norwegian girl in a borrowed dress smiled and sang so engagingly that the judges in the Tribune-Public opportunity contest recently held at the Minnesota theatre, Minneapolis, just had to capitulate and award her the prize.

She was Ruth Haga and she had never appeared on a theatre stage but twice before in her life. Those two times were on a couple of amateur nights in a St. Paul theatre.

As a grand prize for winning this contest which was open to all girls of Minneapolis between the ages of 18 and 26 who desired a stage career, Miss Haga was given a four weeks contract on the stage of the Minnesota theatre appearing in Public revues.

Shortly after winning the grand prize Miss Haga said, "Maybe I'll go to New York, but I can't believe it, but I really wish they'd let me get some experience on the F. & R. circuit first."

And her wish came true. After completing her four weeks contract on the stage of the Minnesota, Ted Bolnick of the F. & R. booking office presented her with a six week's contract under which she will appear on every town on the F. & R. vaudeville circuit.

Miss Haga will be one of the featured stars on the vaudeville program at the Park theatre this Sunday, matinee and night. The picture will be Dolores Del Rio in "No Other Woman."

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore Wilde, famous Broadway actor. His son, Frank, is an idler and spendthrift, and Janet mothers both father and brother. Fenimore Wilde dies, leaving his children penniless, and while Frank goes South to visit friends Janet obtains a job with John Montague, theatrical impresario. She makes friends with Leonard Quigg, a temperamental musician who loves her, and a brilliant young doctor, David Churchill, who is married. Her employer insults her and she resigns to accept the position of secretary to Dr. Churchill. During this time she has added to her list of friends Chester Quigg, the artist uncle of Leonard Quigg, and his daughter, Alice. One evening David Churchill admits he is in love with Janet and is contemplating a divorce. Janet is thunderstruck and tells him she does not love him. She promises to help him forget her by giving up her position, but seeing him occasionally. When he gives the telephone rings. It is little Alice Quigg, begging Janet to come to her father's studio. When Janet arrives there she discovers that the cause of the trouble is Chester's mother, a domineering old lady who insists upon making them miserable. Chester realizes that Janet can placate his mother and offers her a job with them. She tells Alice and Chester that she will think over the proposition.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVI.

ON HER way to David's office the following morning, Janet stopped in at an employment agency and outlined Dr. Churchill's needs.

David was waiting nervously when Janet came into his office. "Can't you forget what I told you?" he began. "Can't you carry on, Janet?"

"That was all settled last night," she told him. She went on to tell him of the employment agency.

David groaned. "I know exactly the sort of females they'll send," he complained helplessly. "You will have to interview them, Janet. I won't." He looked at her. "By the way, what are you going to do for a job?"

"I'm going to be a Quigg keeper," Janet smiled.

Janet told him of the old lady at Chester Quigg's. "She's his mother, although that doesn't describe it," she added. "I've almost made up my mind to do it. I think it's fated—that I have to look after a bunch of artists all my life."

In the afternoon she interviewed five applicants for the position, each of whom seemed incompetent. That evening when Alice telephoned to ask if Janet had made up her mind, she was unable to give a decision.

She was tired of love. There had been the incident, and he was only an incident, of Gordon Pryor. Still, though she was rapidly forgetting him, he had made an impression on her. It had made her shrink back a little from the thought of love. Then John Montague's behavior, though hardly worthy of the term love, had antagonized Janet toward men whom she attracted. Then David—with his declaration of the night before; and now, in considering the question of going to live with the Quiggs, Janet could not shut her eyes to the fact that Leonard might prove a problem.

That he was in love with her, or thought he was in love with her, was apparent. This, Janet argued with herself, was not as important as the promptings in her own heart that warned her that she found him—well, fascinating. And it could only end in disaster. A girl should never marry an artist.

Three days later, Janet discovered a Miss Baintree, who seemed ideal as David's secretary. She was willing to begin work the following week, and Janet heaved a sigh of relief when even David had been forced to approve of her choice.

Then came Janet's last day as David's secretary.

"You'll have to work this evening," he told her. "I don't understand those hospital accounts, and there are various other matters. And don't look at me like that, Janet!" he went on, half-humorously. "It shows you have a nasty, suspicious mind, and I'm a very lucky man to be rid of you. I will not make love to you—which is what you were thinking when I said you would have to work this evening."

"I was thinking it!" Janet admitted.

"I said you had a nasty, suspicious mind!" he repeated. "But I'm busy all the rest of the week. Amy's new idea is to play with the theatrical set. They keep me out of bed till all hours, and I have to be up in the morning. But tonight, I am going to work. Will you have dinner with me at a restaurant?"

Janet hesitated and then refused. She was quite frank on the subject.

"It is wiser not to, David," she told him. "I will continue to see you now and then—until you have recovered from your madness, but you will only get emotional and upset if I go out with you. I will work, of course, but I'll meet you here in the office after dinner."

"I'll be here at half-past eight," David said stiffly, and Janet found him waiting for her on her return.

"I had a delightful dinner with a delightful woman," he said bitterly.

"Yes?" Janet asked, without a trace of jealousy.

"A very important woman,"

Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

David growled. "I dined with Mrs. David Churchill, and we bored each other stiff, except when we thought up something to say that was more than usually disagreeable."

"I can't and won't discuss your wife with you," Janet said sharply. "I want you to understand," Janet went on firmly, "that if you are quarreling with your wife in the hope that I will show an interest in you, once you are free, then you are making a fool of yourself."

"Then let's work!" David began sulkily.

He was standing at Janet's shoulder, a ledger open before them when they became aware that someone had entered the room. Turning, Janet saw a very beautiful golden-haired woman in evening dress.

"Let me introduce Miss Wilde—my wife!" David said quietly.

Mrs. Churchill ignored the introduction. "You told me that you had to call on two or three of your cases," she stormed at him. "Your manner was funny, so I came here to the office just to find out how things were. What a decorative secretary you have there, darling!"

"And a secretary, sweetheart-precious, with whom I am up to my eyes in work!" David snapped back.

"You must find him such an interesting employer, Miss Wilde," Amy said with studied insolence. "You know I've heard of your type before. One wonders why a very pretty girl goes out as a secretary, but it seems that a secretaryship, like charity, can hide a multitude of—shall we call them indiscretions?"

"Of course you are rude—but you can't be quite sane," Janet said as she got up, and put on her things. "This was my last night's work as Dr. Churchill's secretary. I stayed so as to clear everything up—but I hardly expected such a dramatic scene."

Janet went quickly to the door, and without even saying goodbye to David, hurried out of the building, walking quickly towards Fifth Avenue.

She had gone two blocks when David overtook her.

"You can't go like that!" he protested. "Just because Amy is insane, there is no reason why—"

Janet turned on him angrily. "I have my own life to lead," she said bitterly. "Why should you try and drag me into your matrimonial troubles? David, I told you that I would continue to see you—just so that you wouldn't get a complex about me. But I never calculated on a scene such as this evening's. I don't want to see you again, and will you please make that final? If you have the faintest feeling of decency for me, will you please leave me alone from now on?"

David took off his hat.

"My feelings for you will never change," he said slowly. "But I won't have you made unhappy because of me."

He turned, and disappeared in the evening crowd.

Proverb I read

The proverb "Let the cobbler keep to his last" is attributed to Apelles. Greek artists exposed their pictures to the public view in the fronts of porches of their houses. A cobbler criticized the sandal worn by one of the figures in a painting by Apelles. The fault being corrected, the cobbler then ventured to criticize the leg, whereupon Apelles remarked, "Let the cobbler keep to his last."

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgefow

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore Wilde, famous Broadway actor. His son, Frank, is an idler and spendthrift, and Janet mothers both father and brother. Fenimore Wilde dies, leaving his children penniless, and while Frank goes South to visit friends Janet obtains a job with John Montague, theatrical impresario. She makes friends with Leonard Quigg, a temperamental musician who loves her, and a brilliant young doctor, David Churchill, who is married. Her employer insults her and she resigns to accept the position of secretary to Dr. Churchill. During this time she has added to her list of friends Chester Quigg, the artist uncle of Leonard Quigg, and his daughter, Alice. One evening David Churchill admits he is in love with Janet and is contemplating a divorce. Janet is thunderstruck and tells him she does not love him. She promises to help him forget her by giving up her position, but seeing him occasionally. When he goes the telephone rings. It is little Alice Quigg, begging Janet to come to her father's studio. When Janet arrives there she discovers that the cause of the trouble is Chester's mother, a domineering old lady who insists upon making them miserable. Chester realizes that Janet can placate his mother and offers her a job with them. She tells Alice and Chester that she will think over the proposition.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVI.

ON HER way to David's office the following morning, Janet stopped in at an employment agency and outlined Dr. Churchill's needs.

David was waiting nervously when Janet came into his office.

"Can't you forget what I told you?" he began. "Can't you carry on, Janet?"

"That was all settled last night," she told him. She went on to tell him of the employment agency.

David groaned. "I know exactly the sort of females they'll send," he complained helplessly. "You will have to interview them, Janet. I won't." He looked at her.

"By the way, what are you going to do for a job?"

"I'm going to be a Quigg keeper," Janet smiled.

"A Quigg keeper?"

Janet told him of the old lady at Chester Quigg's. "She's his mother, although that doesn't describe it," she added. "I've almost made up my mind to do it. I think it's fated—that I have to look after a bunch of artists all my life."

In the afternoon she interviewed five applicants for the position, each of whom seemed incompetent.

That evening when Alice telephoned to ask if Janet had made up her mind, she was unable to give a decision.

She was tired of love. There had been the incident, and he was only an incident, of Gordon Pryor. Still, though she was rapidly forgetting him, he had made an impression on her. It had made her shrink back a little from the thought of love. Then John Montague's behavior, though hardly worthy of the term love, had antagonized Janet toward men whom she attracted. Then David—with his declaration of the night before; and now, in considering the question of going to live with the Quiggs, Janet could not shut her eyes to the fact that Leonard might prove a problem.

That he was in love with her, or thought he was in love with her, was apparent. This, Janet argued with herself, was not as important as the promptings in her own heart that warned her that she found him—well, fascinating. And it could only end in disaster. A girl should never marry an artist.

Three days later, Janet discovered a Miss Baintree, who seemed ideal as David's secretary. She was willing to begin work the following week, and Janet heaved a sigh of relief when even David had been forced to approve of her choice.

Then came Janet's last day as David's secretary.

"You'll have to work this evening," he told her. "I don't understand those hospital accounts, and there are various other matters. And don't look at me like that, Janet!" he went on, half-humorously. "It shows you have a nasty, suspicious mind, and I'm a very lucky man to be rid of you. I will not make love to you—which is what you were thinking when I said you would have to work this evening."

"I was thinking it!" Janet admitted.

"I said you had a nasty, suspicious mind!" he repeated. "But I'm busy all the rest of the week. Amy's new idea is to play with the theatrical set. They keep me out of bed till all hours, and I have to be up in the morning. But tonight, I am going to work. Will you have dinner with me at a restaurant?"

Janet hesitated and then refused. She was quite frank on the subject.

"It is wiser not to, David," she told him. "I will continue to see you now and then—until you have recovered from your madness, but you will only get emotional and upset if I go out with you. I will work, of course, but I'll meet you here in the office after dinner."

"I'll be here at half-past eight," David said stiffly, and Janet found him waiting for her on her return.

"I had a delightful dinner with a delightful woman," he said bitterly.

"Yes?" Janet asked, without a trace of jealousy.

"A very important woman,"

David growled. "I dined with Mrs. David Churchill, and we bored each other stiff, except when we thought up something to say that was more than usually disagreeable."

"I can't and won't discuss your wife with you," Janet said sharply. "I want you to understand, Janet went on firmly. "that if you are quarreling with your wife in the hope that I will show an interest in you, once you are free, then you are making a fool of yourself."

"Then let's work!" David began sulkily.

He was standing at Janet's shoulder, a ledger open before them when they became aware that someone had entered the room. Turning, Janet saw a very beautiful golden-haired woman in evening dress.

"Let me introduce Miss Wilde—my wife," David said quietly.

Mrs. Churchill ignored the introduction. "You told me that you had to call on two or three of your cases," she stormed at him. "Your manner was funny, so I came here to the office just to find out how things were. What a decorative secretary you have there, darling!"

"And a secretary, sweetheart—precious, with whom I am up to my eyes in work!" David snapped back.

"You must find him such an interesting employer, Miss Wilde," Amy said with studied insolence. "You know I've heard of your type before. One wonders why a very pretty girl goes out as a secretary, but it seems that a secretaryship, like charity, can hide a multitude of—shall we call them indiscretions?"

"Of course you are rude—but you can't be quite sane," Janet said as she got up, and put on her things. "This was my last night's work as Dr. Churchill's secretary. I stayed so as to clear everything up—but I hardly expected such a dramatic scene."

Janet went quickly to the door, and without even saying goodbye to David, hurried out of the building, walking quickly towards Fifth Avenue.

She had gone two blocks when David overtook her.

"You can't go like that!" he protested. "Just because Amy is insane, there is no reason why—"

Janet turned on him angrily. "I have my own life to lead," she said bitterly. "Why should you try and drag me into your matrimonial troubles? David, I told you that I would continue to see you—just so that you wouldn't get a complex about me. But I never calculated on a scene such as this evening's. I don't want to see you again, and will you please make that final? If you have the faintest feeling of decency for me, will you please leave me alone from now on?"

David took off his hat. "My feelings for you will never change," he said slowly. "But I won't have you made unhappy because of me."

He turned, and disappeared in the evening crowd.

Importance of Wanting

A great deal of modern education is based on the theory that wanting is the important thing.—Woman's Home Companion.

Proverb Traced

The proverb "Let the cobbler keep to his last" is attributed to Apelles. Greek artists exposed their pictures to the public view in the fronts of porches of their houses. A cobbler criticized the sandal worn by one of the figures in a painting by Apelles. The fault being corrected, the cobbler then ventured to criticize the leg, whereupon Apelles remarked, "Let the cobbler keep to his last."
